English poker and faro player (1851–1930)

Alice Ivers Duffield Tubbs Huckert (February

17, 1851 – February 27, 1930), better known as Poker Alice, Poker Alice Ivers or Poker Alice Tubbs, was an English poker[1][2] and faro player[3][4] in the American West.

Her family moved from Devon, England, where she was born, to Virginia, United States, where she was reared and educated. As an adult, Ivers moved to Leadville, Colorado, where she met her first husband, Frank Duffield. He got Ivers interested in poker, but he was killed a few years after they married. Ivers made a name for herself by winning money from poker games in places like Silver City, New Mexico, and even working at a saloon in Creede, Colorado, that was owned by Bob Ford, the man who killed Jesse

James.[5]

Early life [ edit ]

"Poker" Alice Ivers was born in England,[6][7] to Irish immigrants. Her family moved to Virginia when Alice was twelve. As a young woman, she went to boarding school in Virginia to become a refined lady. While in her late teens, her family moved to Leadville, a city in the then Colorado Territory.[8]

Personal life

It was in Leadville that Alice met Frank Duffield, whom she married[6] at a young age. Frank Duffield was a mining engineer who played poker in his spare time.[7] After just a few years of marriage, Duffield was killed in an accident[7] while resetting a dynamite charge in a Leadville mine.[9]

Ivers was known for splurging her winnings, as when she won a lot of money in Silver City and spent it all in New York. After all of her big wins, she would travel to New York and spend her money on clothes. She was very keen on keeping up with the latest fashions and would buy dresses to wear to play poker, partly as a business investment to distract her opponents.[9]

Alice met her next husband around 1890[6] when she was a dealer in Bedrock Tom's saloon in Deadwood,[8] South Dakota. When a drunken miner tried to attack her fellow dealer Warren G. Tubbs with a knife, Alice threatened him with her .38.[10] After this incident, Tubbs and Ivers started a romance and were married soon after.[8]

Some sources report Alice and Warren had seven children together,[11][12] other sources report they did not have any children together, but Alice brought two children into the marriage, a daughter and a son, giving Warren two stepchildren.[13] Her son, George, who would take on the Tubbs name. In 1934, George would be saved from a train, after he was found lying on the tracks. Two women were able to pull him to safety just in time to save his life. At the time of the incident, he was 65 years old, putting his birth around 1868.[14]

Warren was a painter by trade, and it was speculated that through his work, he contracted tuberculosis. For the last years of Warren's life, Alice tried to help him regain his health. A few months before Warren died, Alice moved him to a ranch on the Moreau River, 100 miles from Sturgis. It was there that Warren died on December 31, 1909.[15][16][17]

To secure a proper burial and funeral, Alice wrapped Warren's body in blankets, placed him in their lumber wagon, and with her team of horses, traveled to Sturgis. It would take Alice four days to travel along the snow covered trails to the city of Sturgis, where she was able to arrange for a funeral for Warren. In order to pay off the funeral costs, Alice would travel to Rapid City, where she worked as a bartender for Black Nell in Nell's resort.[18]

Alice's third husband was George Huckert,[10] who worked on her homestead taking care of the sheep.[19] Huckert was constantly proposing to Ivers. Eventually, Ivers owed Huckert $1,008, so she married him, figuring that it would be cheaper than paying his back wages.[10] Huckert died on October 12, 1924.[20]

Poker career [ edit ]

After the death of her first husband, Alice started to play poker seriously.[7] Alice was in a tough financial position. After failing in a few different jobs including teaching, she turned to poker to support herself financially.[19] Alice would make money by gambling and working as a dealer. Ivers made a name for herself by winning money from poker games.[7] By the time Ivers was given the name "Poker Alice,"[8] she was drawing in large crowds to watch her play and men were constantly challenging her to play. Saloon owners liked that Ivers was a respectable woman who kept to her values. These values included her refusal to play poker on Sundays.[10]

As her reputation grew, so did the amount of money she was making. Some nights she would even make $6,000,[10] an incredibly large sum of money at the time. Alice claimed that she won $250,000, which would now be worth more than three million dollars.

Ivers used her good looks to distract men at the poker table. She always had the newest dresses,[9] and even in her 50s was considered a very attractive woman. She was also very good at counting cards and figuring odds, which helped her at the table.[21]

Alice was known always to have carried a gun with her, preferably her .38, and frequently smoked cigars.[22]

Poker's Palace and jail time [ edit ]

After

Warren Tubbs death, Alice eventually purchased a building which sat on the south side of Bear Butte Creek, between the city of Sturgis and Fort Meade, South Dakota, where the current Sturgis City Park now stands.[23] "Poker Alice's" resort, as it was commonly known,[24] gained notoriety in 1913 due a confrontation between soldiers of Troop K, stationed at Fort Meade, and Alice herself.

Trouble had initially developed between the soldiers and Alice in the early part of July, 1913, a little over a week before the shooting. Later that week, the trouble was rekindled, and finally once again on Monday, July 14.[25] Around 10:30pm, five soldiers of Troop K, accompanied by a number of members of the South Dakota guard, which had recently been stationed at Fort Meade, went to Alice's resort for the intention of starting a "rough house." After the soldiers were refused admittance, they began throwing stones through the windows of Alice's resort and cutting telephone and electric wires. In response, Alice opened fire, landing five shots. One struck a Private Fred Koetzle of Troop K in the head, and around midnight, he died from the wound.[26] Another soldier, 22-year-old Joseph C. Miner was also shot, with the bullet passing three inches above his heart. While he was initially expected to also die from his wounds, he would later recover.[27] Three other individuals were also struck, including a civilian.[28]

Immediately following the shooting, police, the sheriff and his deputies arrived at the scene. Alice, along with six of her girls would be placed under arrest, and sent to the county jail.[29] No charges would be filed by State's Attorney Gray of Meade county against Alice, for the shooting and subsequent death of Private Koetzle. After investigating the facts of that night, it was determined that Alice was justified in the shooting as she was defending, or attempting to defend, her personal property. However, she was charged with keeping a house of "illfame," and her six girls, Jennie Palmer, Bessie Brundidge, Ann Carr, Birdie Harris, Mabel Smith, and Edith Brown, were convicted of frequenting a house of "illfame." [30]

Two years later, another confrontation at Poker Alice's resort led to the shooting of several soldiers, and one civilian. Private Cadwell was shot in the abdominal region, Private Wood in the neck, and an unnamed civilian in the arm. The incident was written off simply as a "booze" fight.[31]

Alice continued to have run-ins with the law, culminating in the 1920s. In 1924, her resort was raided for bootlegging.[32] The following year, her resort was raided, possibly for the last time, and Alice was charged and convicted of operating a house of prostitution.[33] facing time in the state penitentiary for her convictions of bootlegging and running a house of prostitution, Alice's community came together to petition the governor to grant her a pardon. The claim made was that Alice was in poor health, and confinement to prison could be fatal for her. Hundreds signed the petition.[34] On December 20, 1928, the pardon was granted by then Governor William J. Bulow.[35]

In 1928,

Death [ edit

After being pardoned by then Governor William J. Bulow, Poker Alice appears to have retired. No future run-ins with the law would be reported.

On Thursday, February 6,

1930, Alice underwent a gallbladder operation in Rapid City. There was a general fear that recovery would be difficult due to her advanced age; however, just two days later, it appeared that Alice was recovering speedily and it appeared as if she would be able to return home before long.[36] Her recovery continued to appear to be progressing, but her doctors did warn that there was no surety she was out of danger.[37] On February

27, 1930, Alice died.[38]

Funeral services would be held for Alice on March 1, 1930, at the St. Aloysius Cemetery in Sturgis, South Dakota. Father Columban, of the Catholic Church, gave a sermon at her grave.[39]

Alice left one final surprise: when her will was read, it was revealed that Alice had disinherited her relatives for not paying attention to her in her declining years; instead, she divided her estate among her friends.[40][41]

o qualquer um que cresceu com a versão cinematográfica de Mary Poppins – ou seja, no 60o aniversário do seu lançamento valor várias gerações 'de uma vez crianças - A ideia dele ter sido novo é bastante difícil imaginar. Andrew poppinos sentiu como grampo por mais tempo além da tecnicamente tem até mesmo "clássico" idade: tendo crescido na era VHS festival dos anos 80 e 90 (eu lembro-me disso foi feito bacana play apostas desportivas pé)

As canções, imagens e linguagem do filme estão firmemente incorporadas na cultura popular. A bacana play apostas desportivas visão de conto-de fadas sobre um tecido londrino acessorizado com flor rosa da cerejeira ainda é ideal para turistas! Crianças pequenas ao aprenderem o termo há muito tempo têm intrigado como desafio os termos "supercalifragilisticexpialidocious". Aos 41 anos eu continuo sendo uma imitação das coisas mais rápidas que as pessoas fazem quando elas são tão ruins?

E, no entanto há apenas seis décadas atrás a Disney's Mary Poppin de Hollywood – uma criação mais brilhante e flutuante do que os livros droll surpreendentemente discreto PL Travers (que inspirou o filme) - não era só nova mas também fascinante: um espetáculo técnico moderno; Um lançamento espetacular para estrelas pela primeira vez bacana play apostas desportivas filmes. Em 1964, a marca Walt Disney não estava funcionando com força criativa total. Mary Poppins foi o quinto lançamento do ano e os quatro anteriores – A Tiger Walk walk'S; The Misadventure de Merlin Jones bacana play apostas desportivas "The Three Live of Thomasina" (As três vidas da atriz) ou 'Os giradores-lua', um veículo para as meninas dourada dos estúdios Hayley Mill' - tinham feito pouco impacto entre eles no último mês passado quando foram lançados pela revista americana As séries mais recentes

No papel, Mary Poppins pode não ter parecido uma exceção óbvia. Os livros caprichosos de Travers sobre um babá sobrenatural e suas acusações eram charmoso episódica (não abertamente cinematográfica); diretor Robert Stevenson tornou-se o estais da Disney bacana play apostas desportivas casa proficiente mas especialmente inspirado; Dick Van Dyke -o maior nome do elenco – era estrela na TV porém sem ser considerado como sendo a atração mais famosa dos Estados Unidos pela fama musical Talvez o filme pudesse ter sido feito exatamente como foi – com todo seu artesanato amoroso, musicalidade esplendidamente música fusão pioneira de live action and animação - sem Andrew' assim ela fez um fenômeno equivalente. O desempenho de Andrews preserva todas as contradições misteriosamente estranhas e assustadora do personagem. Sua enunciação inde uma improvavelmente cortada bacana play apostas desportivas vidro é tão precisa quanto suas origens mais tarde sopradas pelo vento, se seus objetivos forem ainda desagradáveis como o que era vaga; musical: ela está sendo um baladeiro mágico com a mesma nota num número único – além da brilhante artista no cinema na próxima estrela Travers Mas ele detesta os livros americanos!

Anos atrás, um trailer reeditado para Mary Poppins tornou-se viral ao formar a brincadeira das crianças alegre como filme de terror gótico completo com outras cabeças fiadas no estilo exorcista – embora isso já estivesse pouco por trás da curva. A verdadeira razão pela qual Maria Papinhos perdura bacana play apostas desportivas meio à alegria que as criancinhas têm é o fato do mundo lúdico ser algo assustador; uma coisa estranha sobre os adultos fingidoristas: O cinema está cheio...

Tentativas subsequentes da Casa do Mou para recapturar bacana play apostas desportivas magia só provaram o que é tão sedutor e esquivo sobre a película bacana play apostas desportivas primeiro lugar.
