Deepfake video sobre compra de carro de lujo por esposa de presidente de Ucrania es parte de una red de desinformación rusa, según bwin app login

Un video deepfake que sugiere falsamente que la esposa del presidente ucraniano Volodymyr Zelensky compró un automóvil de lujo durante la visita del matrimonio a París el mes pasado probablemente forme parte de una red de desinformación rusa, según el análisis de bwin app login y expertos en desinformación.

El video generado por IA presenta a un supuesto empleado de la concesionaria Bugatti en París que afirma que Olena Zelenska compró su nuevo modelo, el Bugatti Tourbillon, por 4,5 millones de euros (alrededor de 4,8 millones de dólares) el 7 de junio.

El clip tiene varias marcas de un deepfake, desde cortes en el video, hasta un extraño acento y movimientos de labios y boca, según Clément Briens, investigador de la empresa de ciberseguridad Recorded Future. Sin embargo, obtuvo cerca de 18 millones de visitas en 24 horas en X, donde fue republicado por influenciadores prorrusos.

Bugatti emitió un comunicado el martes en el que afirma que su concesionaria en París, operada por Autofficina Parigi, una empresa del Grupo Amantes de los Autos, fue víctima de varios delitos y "condenó enérgicamente esta campaña de desinformación".

"Un supuesto vendedor que afirma pertenecer al Grupo Amantes de los Autos y a su sello deportivo Schumacher Group publicó un video en redes sociales en el que indicó que la concesionaria de París vendió un vehículo a la pareja presidencial ucraniana", dijo, agregando que el grupo "niega enfáticamente tanto la existencia de la transacción como, por lo tanto, la existencia de la factura".

"Los detalles legales obligatorios no aparecen en la factura, el precio del vehículo también está mal, las opciones de precio y sus descripciones son inexactas e inconsistentes, los gráficos son obsoletos y el Grupo Amantes de los Autos nunca habría permitido que se emitiera tal documento", agregó el comunicado.

El grupo también dijo que ha presentado una denuncia penal "por falsificación, uso de falsificaciones, usurpación de identidad y difamación" - pero no especificó contra quién se presentó la denuncia.

Clarity, una startup de ciberseguridad de IA que lucha contra los deepfakes, le dijo a bwin app login que su revisión del video indicó "una alta certeza de manipulaciones de IA, principalmente en la zona media de la cara".

El video proviene de un sitio web francés, Verite Cachee France (sic), cuyo contenido parece ser generado por IA al raspar medios franceses.

Un análisis muestra que Verite Cachee se configuró recientemente, el 22 de junio de 2024, y algunas de sus páginas aún tienen invitaciones con AI para crear artículos falsos en la parte superior del artículo. bwin app login no pudo encontrar un contacto para el sitio web.

El título del sitio web tampoco BR acentos – la ortografía correcta sería Vérité Cachée – lo que arroja dudas adicionales sobre su autenticidad.

Darren Linvill, profesor en el Centro de Medios Forenses de la Universidad de Clemson, le dijo a bwin app login que el deepfake y los sitios web de Verite Cachee tienen las características de una campaña de blanqueo de narrativas rusas que ha estado en curso desde agosto pasado, con el objetivo de socavar Ucrania.

"Typically place some video with a story to tell on YouTube. They then tell that story by layering it on the fake news pages they've created, and often also one or more allied web pages. They then integrate the story through social media, starting with real pro-Russian influencers who are part of their network," he told bwin app login. "Only minor change with this campaign is that the video doesn't seem to be on YouTube."

In a report from last December, Linvill and Patrick Warren, also a professor at Clemson, showed how the disinformation campaign was led by DC Weekly, a website that published a series of AI-generated Russian propaganda and fake stories, such as the debunked claim that Olena Zelenska bought R$1.1 million jewellery at Cartier in New York last September.

A report by Recorded Future, a leading cybersecurity company, also identified Veritee Cachee as being part of the same disinformation network.

Given the size and resources of the network, it is likely some Russian support or financing is happening, Clément Briens, a senior threat intelligence analyst at the company, told bwin app login.

"They scrape articles automatically from a number of sources, using LLMs to introduce specifically political bias to attack Zelensky, Biden and NATO. Then they upload the articles to launder a pro-Russian narrative," Briens said.

The sheer volume of articles makes it harder to detect when deep fakes are introduced because when someone clicks on the website, they see a backlog of articles that usually pass the initial check, he said.

"Then after someone uploads the video from YouTube or directly into the site, the amplification system gets activated on social media."

The target is political readers in Europe, with the purpose to erode domestic political support for Ukraine and undermine European leaders that support Ukraine, such as French President Emmanuel Macron, according to the analyst.
