There Are Other Ways to Trap Than by Slow Playing

February 16, 2024 Sid Gaughan

When some no-limit hold'em players think of 7 "trapping" they immediately think of "slow playing." In fact, some will equate the two, mistakenly believing the only way to 7 trap an opponent after the flop is by slow playing.

Trapping actually refers to a broader postflop strategy that can but 7 doesn't necessarily involve slow playing. You can "trap" and still play a hand "fast" by betting and raising right away 7 for value.

Trapping by Slow Playing

We're all familiar with slow playing, a strategy that can work especially well in certain situations, 7 particularly against aggressive opponents. It's kind of the opposite of bluffing. Instead of betting with a weak hand, you check 7 or call with a strong hand, giving the impression from your action that you are weak.

Earlier this week, Matthew Pitt 7 recounted "The Top 5 Hands from 888Live Rozvadov," one of which provides a ready example of someone slow playing a 7 strong hand in order to earn maximum value.

With eight players remaining in the €5,300 High Roller, Enzo Del Piero raised 7 with 87 and was called by Pierre Neuville from the blinds who had J9. The flop fell 99K to give 7 Neuville trips, and rather than leading with a bet he chose to check and allow the preflop raiser to continuation 7 bet, as Del Piero did.

Neuville just called the c-bet, and checked again after the very safe-looking 4 turn card fell, 7 remaning reasonably sure his trip nines remained the best hand. Del Piero checked behind this time, and the river brought 7 the A.

With other river cards Neuville might have chosen this as a time finally to bet his hand. But he 7 knew the ace was likely either to have improved Del Piero to a good but in this case second-best hand, 7 or if it didn't improve him the card might encourage Del Piero to bluff and represent having an ace in 7 his hand. Neuville therefore checked again, and Del Piero fell into the trap by moving all in.

Neuville called right away 7 to win the pot and eliminate Del Piero in eighth.

Trapping by Betting
While that was certainly an example of slow playing,
7 Neuville's call of a raise with J9 more generally illustrates a key principle of "trapping" — namely, playing a speculative 7 hand and then finding a way to earn full value when the hand manages to hit the board hard.

Such examples 7 of trapping can begin in various ways. A player might choose to open-raise before the flop with J9 — a 7 "suited one-gapper" with potential to flop flush or straight draws. Suited connectors (e.g., QJ, 98, etc.) and small pairs also 7 qualify as speculative hands that need to improve postflop to outperform stronger starting hands.

When such hands do improve, the likelihood 7 of their earning value increases since opponents often think first of stronger starting hands when others raise preflop. Especially if 7 you've cultivated a somewhat tight image, if you raise with J9 and a flop comes 1084, your opponent won't necessarily 7 appreciate how hard that flop has hit your hand (giving you both straight and flush draws). Or if you raise 7 with 65 and a flop comes 955 — a board that looks like a big whiff to a preflop raiser 7 holding a couple of Broadway cards.

In such cases, continuation bets are more likely to be called, as might turn and/or 7 river bets as you seek even more value. The "trap" here is achieved not by slow playing, but rather by 7 betting and/or raising throughout.

A hand like this can prove beneficial in other ways, too, favorably affecting your image. You raised 7 with six-five then barreled away postflop? Some opponents won't appreciate how those later bets were for value, instead remembering what 7 seemed a very loose preflop play. You might actually be on the tight side, but now you appear loose, and 7 thus are set up well to earn action when raising with genuinely strong starting hands.

Going ahead and betting after flopping 7 a set with a small pocket pair is another way potentially to trap an opponent into paying you off. You 7 have 44 and the flop comes Q94. In some cases slow playing might be the right option, but in others 7 going ahead and betting will be even more deceptive and thus a more effective "trap" in which to ensnare an 7 opponent.

However it is achieved, trapping means underrepresenting the strength of your hand in order to encourage opponents to commit chips 7 when you have them beat. But slow playing — that is, checking and calling — isn't the only way to 7 underrepresent a hand. Betting can also connote weakness, in certain situations, and thus deliver the signal that you're not nearly 7 as strong as you are.

Continuation betting "dry" flops that appear unlikely to have hit the hand you raised with before 7 the flop is one example. So, too, might "donk betting" — leading with a bet from out of position after 7 calling a preflop raise — on a "wet" flop that happened to have hit your hand hard. Even a postflop 7 check-raise, usually a very aggressive move signaling obvious strength, can in certain, special situations be regarded as suggesting weakness, interpreted 7 as a bluff rather than appreciated for a genuine attempt to build a pot.

Conclusion
Slow playing can be an effective way 7 to win big pots, especially against aggressive opponents. But remember there are other ways to trap, too, including by going 7 ahead and betting strong hands yourself in situations where your bets might appear more like bluffs than for value.
