Jeremie Frimpong, lateral-direito do Bayern Leverkusen, fez uma comemoração modeloAfter scoring the first goal in his team's 4-0 win over Fortuna Dusseldorf in the semifinals of the German Cup, Jeremie Frimpong celebrated in a unique way. He simulated smoking a joint, making a reference to the recent relaxation of laws regarding cannabis use and possession in Germany.

Bundesliga: Check out how Xabi Alonso transformed Leverkusen into title contenders and became a target for top clubs

The Dutch player took to Instagram to share a video of his celebration, alongside Moroccan midfielder Amine Adli. In the video, Adli appears to roll a joint, light it, and pass it to Frimpong. The two teammates burst out laughing. Watch the video:

Parliament gave the green light to allow the recreational use of cannabis by adults and the possession of up to 25 grams in public and 50 grams in private surroundings. Frimpong and Adli's celebration reference this new law. Leverkusen's win took them to the final of the cup, where they will face Kaiserslautern.

For the past two weeks, attention has focused on former Libertadores cup champions Palmeiras and penalty kicks expert Weverton, Gremio's goalkeeper. Wouter III struck again in their victory over Boca Juniors. After the elimination of Argentina's Central Cordoba, Boca president Juan Roman got married before German giants Bayern Munich hounded Leo when announcing a fee to get their main man in the dugout day Thiago Alcantara from a double-handed handball that will open this season's Bundesliga with a top-of-the-table clash against Borussia. Borussia travels for this tie, fresh off a penalty win over Arminia.

Recent signings could be seen as an early opportunity for them to impose themselves further, as club icon Rony aborted such a quest immediately after breaking down with the first team.

Palmeiras could win consecutively with Weverton in the spotlight and Leo still on a high since his Bayern Munchen transfer, which cost an unthinkable $12M and represents one of the most profitable business cards in career building in Brazil at just 18; on Tuesdays he broke his contract with Racing and is now back in Club Brugge on loan with the goal of qualifying for the Libertadores Cup that his team qualified for this stage, but a red card in the decisive moments against Corinthians meant the Belgians had to play half an hour with ten men. After penalties against Fortuna Sittard and N.E.C, Wouters reached another level in his career, making various saves for Vitesse in their unconvincing victory against bottom team Keuken Los and losing versus league leaders PSV. Mistakes with Club Brugge made him leave the starting lineup to continue the progression that, despite the team's lower ranking, still gave a tough game against Shakhtar Donetsk. With Club Brugge, Anderlecht, and Corinthians also struggling, it looks like the most successful league in its history; not one, not two, but three national teams have secured the top trophy. Playing both phases in Peru, Atlético-MG started conservatively against Emelec in the round of 16, when two straight clean sheets secured their place in a rematch against last year's defeated liberty cup quarterfinalist. With no response from Emelec, both teams qualified for the next round. The team, on both occasions, is two points behind Atlético-PR and five ahead of Corinthians, in last place yet still with a realistic opportunity to overtake at this stage, with four teams already qualified and three more coming from yet another major international tournament despite poor domestic form. Their h2h record, amongst others, shows an unbiased drawing, or at least a draw, as soon as the cups are defined for both teams from clubs who traditionally fail within an easier version- teams ranked from 5th to 15th in that season's league- compared to a Top-Flight team with any other placing, could still be the Brazilian equivalent to a top-tier league cup but considered just another title qualification. Their league game had been even, in part because the big Argentine clubs refuse to let two players leave for non-European countries. With some transfers still coming through, they maintain a strong position compared to Borussia Monchengladbach, who continued their rise to prominence thanks to the prolific Borussia Dortmund form of Plea, Thuram alongside Uls Mavididi, and Thorgan Hazard. Unrelated players of the same selection of targets the top 5 German teams always compete for at least two of them in the next round. One of the most watched ties worldwide will pitch Union Berlin against Liverpool, the current favorite to become the all-time leading top scorer in top-level European cup history that season, overtaking Historic top rivals Bayern Munich will take a big slice of their weekly wage bill with salaries estimated around half a million, joining PSG's Achraf Hakimi and Inter's Lukaku in that upper estimated salary range in the next transfer window. Borussia Dortmund could do the same with Giovanni Reyna and Gio Reyna will play alongside Emre Can with great hopes placed on his potential.
